TO PROBE CHARGE OF LA FOLLETTE

Special Senate Committee Convenes at Chicago.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS UP

Inquiry to Be Directed First at Ascertaining the Actual Receipts and Expenditures by the Three Major Political Organizations, Republican, Democratic and Independent. Chairman Borah's Statement.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Senator William E. Borah (Rep., Ida.), called from a campaign tour in the west by the charges of Senator La Follette, independent presidential candidate, that improper and unwarranted use of money had become a factor in the campaign in certain states, said here that "every line of inquiry will be followed to the end that as far as possible the source of all campaign funds may be revealed." Chairmen of the national committees of the Republican and Democratic parties and John M. Nelson, national director of the La Follette campaign, have been requested to submit formal detailed reports for the examination of the committee. Senator Borah said that if any evidence were offered by the La Follette forces it would be received by the committee at some convenient place, probably in the east. Should witnesses be available in Chicago, however, the entire inquiry will be prosecuted here.

While the senate committee was called to meet at this time because of the charge of Senator Robert M. La Follette, the independent presidential candidate, that the Republicans are raising a huge "slush" fund for use in doubtful states, Senator Borah said the inquiry would be directed first at ascertaining the actual receipts and expenditures by the three major political organizations—Republican, Democratic and Independent. These will be studied carefully by the committee before an effort will be made to determine the full scope of the investigation and whether it is to be pursued at places other than Chicago.

Borah announced that Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City, who has been selected by Senator La Follette to present his charges to the committee, would be called as soon as the preliminary phases of the investigation have been concluded. Senator Borah, who is chairman of the committee, said he had not been advised as to who would be selected by the several organizations to represent them before the committee. At western Democratic headquarters here it was stated that the whole matter is in the hands of National Chairman Shaver, who is expected here from Washington in a few days.

Chairman Butler of the Republican national committee and William Hodges, the national treasurer, have prepared a report for the committee, which will be submitted by a representative. It was stated, however, that Butler and Hodges would be prepared to appear personally before the committee at some later time if specifically requested to do so.

COOLIDGE SPEAKS

Declares the American Government Rests on Religion.

Washington, Oct. 16.—At the dedication of a statue here to Francis Asbury, pioneer Methodist bishop, President Coolidge declared that the American government rested on religion.

"The government of a country never gets ahead of the religion of a country," said the president. "There is no way by which we can substitute the authority of law for the virtue of man. Of course, we can help to restrain the vicious and furnish a fair degree of security and protection by legislation and police control, but the real reforms which society in these days is seeking will come as a result of our religious convictions or they will not come at all."

Practically all of the president's address was devoted to a discussion of religious principles and to a description of the career of Francis Asbury.

Seaplane Breaks Record.

Washington, Oct. 16.—The world's official record for a nonstop flight by a seaplane was broken by the navy seaplane SDW, when it returned to the naval air station at Anacostia, near here, after a flight of 20 hours, 20 minutes and 10 seconds. The pilots were Lieutenants Andrew Crinkley and R. D. Lyon of the navy.

MRS. WILLIAM LAMBEER

President of National Association of Bank Women.

MECCA FALLS

King Ali Flees From the Holy City of the Islam World.

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 16.—According to messages received here, Wahabi tribesmen captured Mecca, holy city of Islam, and are looting the royal palace. King Ali of Hedjaz has fled.

King Ali, then sheriff of Mecca, aided the allies during the war and was rewarded by being made king. His opponent in the present strife is Ibn Saul.

Mecca is the most venerated of all Moslem cities. It contains the great tomb of the sheiks, the mosque of El Haram and the holy shrines of the Kaaba, inclosing the black stone supposed to have been placed there by Abraham himself. Each year some 10,000 Mohammedan pilgrims come to kiss the stone.

TO URGE PROBATION FOR ADULT OFFENDERS

Ohio Welfare Conference Will Seek Legislation.

Columbus, Oct. 16.—The Ohio Welfare conference, in annual session here, may urge the next legislature to create a comprehensive probation system for adult offenders in Ohio.

Outlines of the proposed law, which is being drafted by the Ohio institute, were presented at sectional sessions of the conference. It would provide a case study, encompassing social, physical and psychological history, before passage of sentence. It is proposed merely to authorize creation in each county of a probation board, the functions of which would be purely advisory. Cases coming to the attention of common pleas court could be referred to this board, which would conduct an investigation of home surroundings, physical condition and mental status of the offender involved.

As now contemplated, organization of the board would be optional. Decision as to whether it should be created would be left to each individual county.

That a difficult task is being assumed and that its ultimate success depends largely upon "changing the prevailing attitude of the public toward adult offenders" was admitted by Dean Haggerty of the college of commerce and journalism, Ohio State university, who discussed the proposed law at a meeting of the Ohio State Probation association. Dean Haggerty declared this need is equally applicable both to the laity and the judiciary.

Girl Missing.

Columbus, Oct. 16.—Dorothy Stonestreet, 15, left her home Oct. 7 to go to a downtown store for her mother. Mrs. Charles Stonestreet. Since then no trace of her has been found. Her parents have enlisted the aid of the police in their search.

Woman Named For Governor.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 16.—The state Democratic convention nominated Mrs. Nellie G. Ross, widow of the late Governor William B. Ross, for governor by unanimous vote.

GIANT ZEPPELIN SAFE IN HANGAR

Completed Her Trip From Germany in Eighty Hours.

ESTABLISHED NEW RECORD

Big Dirigible, Brought Safely Through the Winds and Perils of the Atlantic, Hovers Above Boston and New York to Demonstrate the Future of Its Type of Aircraft—Landing Made Without Incident.

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 16.—The Zeppelin ZR-3 is safely in her hangar here after completing her 80-hour trip from Germany.

The giant airship was the second lighter-than-air craft to cross the Atlantic and she broke the record of the British R-34 for westward flight over the ocean. The British dirigible flew from East Fortune, Scotland, five years ago, requiring four days, 12 hours, for the journey.

Landing here Captain George W. Steele, senior American observer on board the Zeppelin, was met by his mother, Mrs. George Steele of Marion, Ind.; his uncle, Frank Swayzee of Washington, D. C., and his wife, to whom he was married in Germany eight months ago. "We had a wonderful journey," were Steele's words. "The only bad weather was Tuesday, when we changed our course and headed for Newfoundland."

The ZR-3 first crossed over American soil when her commander, Dr. Eckener, who brought her safely through the winds and perils of the Atlantic, steered the Zeppelin over Boston. This was 75 hours and 47 minutes after her departure. Continuing down the coast, Dr. Eckener sent his craft low above New York's millions to demonstrate her air worthiness. The city sent up cheers that died on the air long before reaching the speeding airship. No untoward incident marked the close of the flight.

Dr. Eckener's purpose in flying over New York city so low was to demonstrate the future of the dirigible type and possibly persuade the allies and the United States to let him continue building monster lighter-than-air craft.

Arriving at Lakehurst, Dr. Eckener, at the airship's helm, brought the ship down deliberately. The ZR-3's motors were humming in pleasing unison and she answered the wheel readily, turning from north to south as she descended from 1,500 feet to 400 feet. A member of the ground crew at the naval station leaped and caught the first of the descending Zeppelin's landing ropes. This marked the actual landing of the ZR-3, according to the understanding in airship circles. Other members of the ground crew caught other ropes and the Zeppelin's motors were stilled. The laborious process of bringing the dirigible down and into her hangar began.

SHAYER'S STATEMENT

Wilbur to Testify For the Defense in the Oil Suits.

Washington, Oct. 16.—In a statement issued at Democratic headquarters here, Chairman Shaver of the Democratic national committee, said: "Secretary Wilbur has been subpoenaed to testify for the defense in the suits to determine the legality of the Doheny oil leases in southern California. Former Secretary of the Navy Daniels has been subpoenaed to testify for the government. There you have the story of the scandal in a nutshell."

"The need of Doheny for the help of the present secretary of the navy, who was muzzled by President Coolidge on his last trip west for 'talking too much,' like the famous parrot, is revealed in the statement of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company (Doheny company), that 'Secretary Wilbur is subpoenaed as a witness for the defense and is required to submit to the court certain files of the navy department, on which it is understood the Pan-American petroleum company relies to demonstrate the great importance to the national defense of the accumulation of fuel oil on the Pacific coast and the construction of storage and lighter facilities at Hawaii.'"

Preacher Exonerated.

Newport, Ky., Oct. 16.—The name of Rev. William F. Gregory, pastor of a Methodist church here, was cleared by the action of the grand jury in ignoring charges of an attack brought by Miss Annabel Fisher, 20, choir singer. The Methodist conference has also exonerated Rev. Mr. Gregory.

Sumner said the trio jostled him in the crowd at a High street corner and picked his pocket of the wallet.

GREAT BRITAIN INTERVENES

Arrests Leaders of New Uprising Menacing Shanghai.

MAY DISPOSE OF WAR SPOILS

Leaderless Soldiers of the Defeated Chekiang Army Still Threaten Shanghai as Rival Groups Fight For Right to Loot the City—Additional Sailors Landed From Foreign Warships in the Harbor.

Shanghai, Oct. 16.—Great Britain has intervened in the situation here and may assume a general supervision of the disposition of the spoils of war between the rival Chinese leaders.

British military authorities seized even Chekiang generals, including Little Hsu, the Aantu leader, causing collapse of a new uprising, which has threatened Shanghai since the defeat of General Lu Yung Hsiang. The British also seized a number of other high Chekiang officers, who were taken to the police station and questioned by the Italian consul as head of the foreign consular bodies. The men were released under surveillance on their promise to stop indiscriminate fighting in the city.

Many of the leaderless soldiers of the defeated defense army still are attempting to enter the French concession and the international zone. Leaderless soldiers still threatened Shanghai as rival groups fought for the right to loot the city.

Fighting between the rival forces was resumed near Nanzhang and within eight miles of Shanghai, after a military conference, endeavoring to arrange disposition of the spoils, had broken up without an agreement. General Chi, fearing treachery, kept his troops ready for any eventuality.

Advices from Mukden say American officials in that city are disturbed over anti-American propaganda conducted by the Japanese press, and are planning a protest to the Japanese foreign office. America is accused of secretly supplying arms to the Pekin government's forces.

NINETY MILLION BUSHEL

Ohio's Corn Crop Reported Only Half of Last Year's.

Columbus, Oct. 16.—With Ohio's corn crop now in shocks and approximately final estimates of the quantity are available, C. J. West, state-federal crop statistician, predicted that, despite favorable weather conditions, it will be only a little more than half of last year's. Most recent figures place the total crop at 90,650,000 bushels. Last year the yield amounted to 159,860,000 bushels. West said corn just about held its own during the month of September with the favorable weather, but too much of the acreage received too late a start to make up for the bad beginning. The entire corn crop for the country is estimated to be about a half billion bushels short of last year's yield. Both tobacco and sugar beat crops will be well below last year, West declared.

Ohio cities in the new organizations include Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati. A war chest, based on population of the various municipalities, will be raised.

New Philadelphia, Oct. 16.—William Hannekrat, 45, kiln fireman employed at the Zoar Brick and Fire Clay company's plant at Zoar, after employing Stanley Porter to fire his kilns, committed suicide at his home by firing both barrels of a shotgun into his chest.

Ohio—Friday: Unsettled; possibly showers.

ACCUSED DRY AGENTS

Woman Testifies They Attempted to "Frame" Holycross.

Columbus, Oct. 16.—Testifying at the trial of former Sheriff Frank L. Holycross, Mrs. Myrtle Denzer said state prohibition officers tried to force her, with threats of arrest, into signing affidavits against Holycross, and, failing to obtain her signature, tried to get it through offers of "the best position in the department." Holycross is accused of having taken liquor from the county jail to a "wild party" at the home of Mrs. May Chipman here. Mrs. Denzer is a niece of Mrs. Chipman. Declaring she was drawn into the tangled maze of what the defense terms an "Anti-Saloon league attack on Holycross," Mrs. Denzer told how state dry agents and her aunt, Mrs. Chipman, "agent provocateur" in what was admitted in earlier testimony to have been a "trap for the sheriff," took her by force to the state house to be examined. There, she testified, Frank S. Evans, deputy prohibition commissioner, threatened her with jail if she refused to sign the affidavit he had prepared against Holycross, and, failing to obtain her signature, offered her "the best job in his office" if she would sign.

Banks Aid Tobacco Growers.

Columbus, Oct. 16.—The Ohio National, the Huntington National and the Citizens' Savings and Trust banks of this city, together with the Fifth-Third National bank of Cincinnati, have arranged $1,000,000 acceptance credit for the Miami Valley Tobacco Growers' association in order to assist the organization in marketing its present crop. The same general plan as that used by New York bankers in financing the selling of the cotton crop in the southwest, has been adopted by the Columbus and Cincinnati banks to aid the Ohio tobacco growers.

SHOT BY BOY

Ohio Prohibition Agent Attempts to Search a Residence.

Batavia, O., Oct. 16.—Harry Hill and his 11-year-old son are under arrest here following the shooting of George Lucas of Georgetown, state prohibition agent. The shooting occurred while Lucas was arguing with the boy's father over a warrant to search his house. The boy became excited, ran into the house and seized his father's shotgun. He shot point-blank at the agent, wounding him in the left hip. It is believed Lucas will recover. Other officers grappled with the father and son, and the two were brought here for hearing. Hill was bound over to the grand jury. The boy, charged with shooting with intent to kill, will be given a hearing before juvenile authorities.

Probing Collision.

Huntington, W. Va., Oct. 16.—Federal inspectors are investigating the collision here of the packet steamer Betsy Ann with the Huntington wharfbarge, in which the latter was sunk in the Ohio river with a loss of $35,000. No one was hurt. The crash occurred in a heavy fog.

Bonapartes in America

While the senior branch of the Bonaparte family became extinct on the death of Prince Roland Bonaparte recently, several members of other branches are still alive.

The most interesting branch—the American—is not mentioned in the Almanach de Gotha, the continental directory, but it is both legitimate and influential, and one of its scions, the late Charles Joseph Bonaparte, was attorney general and secretary of the navy in the United States cabinet.

Elizabeth Patterson, whose marriage to Jerome, Napoleon's younger brother, was the starting point of the American branch, was never acknowledged by Napoleon as his sister-in-law; but, although he "annulled" the marriage on Jerome's return to Europe, this did not affect its validity.—London Answers.

GEORGIA BALKS AT CONTROL BY SOVIET

Melville Chater Gives Vivid Picture of Country.

Washington.—With nearly all of the republic of Georgia in the hands of insurgents seeking to throw off Soviet Russian control, that country, save in the capital, Tiflis, and the Black sea port, Batumi, is in much the condition that it was in its independent days following the World war. What the country was like before it succumbed to soviet influence is told in a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society, quoting a communication from Melville Chater.

"Though one has penetrated fairly far into the East at Tiflis," says the bulletin, "if one expects vistas of caravans, camels and Bedouins-at-the-well, he will suffer disillusionment in his first impressions. The Golovinsky Prospekt, which runs through the heart of the Georgian capital, is as handsome a bit of modern metropolism as can be found anywhere. With its restaurants and cafes, its jewelers, art shops and opera, its vice regal palace, the Prospekt, especially when seen in the lounging hour, is undeniably chic.

Wasp-Waisted Males.

"Here stroll Russians, Georgians, Armenians and the representatives of a score of mountain tribes who have business in the new capital. There is a splendor of uniforms and of side-arms, the Caucasian national costume dominating the picture. A very long, swagger overgarment of brown or gray, padded square at the shoulders, with wasplike waist, and descending as a smartly flared skirt—this, together with high, heeled boots, a square astrakhan cap, a clanking sword, two magnificently chased daggers, a brace of pistols and sixteen fountain pens strung across his chest represents what I would term the picturesque scenery worn by your typical Georgian in war, in peace, and in the bosom of his countrymen.

"What I have called fountain pens turned out to be more weapons—hol-low tubes, anciently designed to contain powder and shot.

"One looks at these magnificently accoutered swaggers, with their stiff mustaches and close-shaven skulls, and thinks of comic opera and of the dear old kingdom of Zenda; also one trembles for the League of Nations, fearing that the Georgian will never consent to a reduction of his armament.

"More militarism has no mortgage on uniforms at Tiflis. Everybody wears one, including school children and their teachers, according to Russian custom; and hundreds upon hundreds of civilians are thus attired because, clothes being scarce and expensive, they prefer buying some officer's cast-off outfit.

"The 'lounging hour' is important in Georgia. In fact, there are some sixteen of these to the Georgian's day, and perhaps it would be simpler to speak of the working hour. Between two and three o'clock in the afternoon, down go the steel lattices which guard the shop windows—then Tiflis resumes its national pastime of jole de vivre until six o'clock of the following morning; for that is the hour when the Georgians' all-night parties break up—break up, I mean, with shots exchanged across the table.

"The Georgian is renowned for his hospitality. His customary greeting is, 'While in Tiflis you will consider my home yours,'—an offer which was tendered us so regularly that we suffered, I may almost say, from an embarrassment of homes.

"Dinner Parties All-Night Affairs. "The Georgian dinner party, a mighty matter of courses and wines, begins at 2:30 in the afternoon and lasts until 5. Then there will be a dance in the evening, refreshments commencing at 9 o'clock and continuing between dance-numbers until the company reels homeward in the dawn.

"Occasionally the floor is cleared for a dagger-dance, a picturesque and barbaric business performed to a rhythmic accompaniment of hand-clapping by some tall, beskirted native, who prances murderously about with from five to seven daggers held between his teeth.

"The Georgian public function is a superb affair of uniforms, healths drunk, huzzahs, celebrities carried shoulder-high about the room, and a chorus of liveried trumpeters who sound fanfares at the close of every toast. Once again one realizes that, though the Georgians have gone red republican, Zenda's dear old comic-opera kingdom still lies deep in their hearts."

Prehistoric Animal Remains Excavated

Buenos Aires.—Laborers doing excavating work in the suburbs of Vicente Lopez, just outside the city limits of Buenos Aires, have discovered a rich deposit of fossil remains of the beasts who used to inhabit this part of South America in prehistoric ages. The head of a glyptodon, the predecessor of the armadillo, together with dorsal and thigh bones, were among the finds, which include also bones of a prehistoric tiger.

The glyptodon skull is not of the giant species, but the paleontologists of the National Museum of Natural History, who are conducting the excavation work, consider it as one of the finest examples yet discovered, being almost completely preserved, including nearly all the teeth.

Canada Protects Forests

Canada this year will spend about $15,000,000 in protection against forest fires and the management of forest reserves. In the detection of fires, in areas where the most valuable stands of timber are located, royal Canadian air forces are to be employed. Planes will patrol the forest sections of the Rocky mountains, and wireless apparatus, which has proved effective in the West in establishing communication between ground fire ranges and airplanes, will be installed in the East.

Changing His Mind

"You know Lafe Dapp, who was married last week to a widow lady with seven children, don't you?" asked Toke Sagg, of Sandy Mush.

"Lez see!" returned Jig Fiddlin, who was lounging in the crossroads store. "He's a Free Thinker, ain't he?" "He was; didn't believe in hell, nor nuth'n' that-a-way. But he's already begun to change his mind."—Kansas City Star.

Officer Would Stick Until Morning Anyhow

A harrowing, yet amusing, tale of an exciting voyage is told by Sergt. W. B. Beach in the Leatherneck, the journal of the marines. Sergeant Beach was a member of a detachment that returned from the Philippine islands on the Grant some time ago.

A few days out of Nagasaki, he writes, we ran into a typhoon and about the midnight of that night we were shippin' 'em green at every plunge. But for a technicality we would have drawn diving pay! We had lost our wireless, and our screw was grinding halfway out of water, when an exceptionally heavy sea struck us amidships and battered in the bulkhead door of the forward compartment. In the roll that followed everything movable including rifles, sea bags, marines and several fathoms of chain wrapped itself round my neck, but that trifling impediment did not keep me from leading the rush for top side. Just then, however, in came several tons of water through the battered door, and things began to look serious.

One of the stewards went after the first officer, who was unknown to most of us. In a few minutes the officer appeared at the head of the gangway with a plank under his arm. One young marine who had never been through such an experience before turned pale as a dreadful suspicion entered his mind. The officer was carrying a plank; planks float; therefore the officer was going to quit the ship! A bunch of helpless marines, women and children were to be left to the mercy of the waves. It was no time to stand on ceremony.

"Hey, mister!" the little fellow piped out in a quivering voice. "Yuh ain't a-goin' to leave us, are you?"

The officer glared and then grinned—for the first time in years, according to the steward—and said: "Well, I guess I'll stay with you until morning anyway, son." Then he proceeded to bar up the door with his plank.—Youth's Companion.

Sticks as Receipts.

In one of the corridors of the British houses of parliament there is a curious exhibit which looks like a bundle of kindling wood. It represents all that is left of the account "books" used by the exchequer during the Middle Ages. The bundle consists of "tallies," notched sticks on which accounts were kept. When an account was paid a stick was split. One-half was kept as a "receipt." When the crude system was abandoned, and proper books were kept, there was a vast accumulation of these tallies, and early in the last century an official had the happy thought of saving on fuel by using this vast hoard of tally-sticks as kindling wood. It was actually by the overheating of a stove by using too many of these tally-sticks that the old houses of parliament caught fire in 1834 and were burned down.

Circular Effects Favored in Paris

Designers Show Wider Hemline by Using Plait, Flounce, Tunic.

Out of the maze of styles presented at the Paris autumn showings, writes a fashion authority in the New York Herald-Tribune, it is evident that the slightly flared silhouette has come to share the spotlight with the slender outline that has prevailed during recent seasons. The common characteristic of almost every silhouette, whether it be narrow or bouffant, is an increased shortness, the new skirt length being abbreviated at from 12 to 15 inches off the ground.

The new flared outline is sponsored by Cheruit, Jenny, Doucet, Lelong, Molyneux, Agnes, Martail et Armand, Patou and Chanel. Not all of these designers favor the wider hemline exclusively, and many of them include as many as three distinct silhouettes in their collections.

The methods of achieving the wider silhouette are numerous, and the only general point of agreement is that the bodice must remain extremely slender, and that the flare should be entirely confined to the lower portion of the skirt.

Doucet, whose frocks were worn by Dorziat, a famous French actress, adheres strictly to the slender line from shoulder to knee, at which point the skirt bursts suddenly into circular flounces. Jenny varies the custom of years by the use of spiral tiers and an occasional raised waistline. Agnes, who is among the most ardent exponents of the tunic, is featuring a definitely shorter skirt length which emphasizes its fullness entirely and only at the front. The silhouette accented by Molyneux is among the shortest shown this season, and it depends for its occasional flare upon loose tabs which appear at the hemline of sheaths and tunics.

Most enthusiastic of all the wider hemline advocates is Chanel, who has very courageously adopted the flared outline to the almost total exclusion of all others. Her silhouette is arrived at by three distinct methods—she uses the circular skirt, flaring plaits or a succession of tiers.

It is true that the flared outline has an imposing list of sponsors; but so, too, did the larger hats of last spring, which were subsequently turned down with very little ceremony by the ultimate arbiters—mesdames themselves.

What is certain is that this different silhouette will receive an immediate audience, particularly among those who have manifested impatience at the continued sameness of the mode. After that, its fate depends upon milady. The host of doubtful conservatives who look long before they leap can play safe by again adopting the perfectly straight outline, as its place is assured for another season at least.

Proud to the Last
"No," I spoke to myself firmly, "not another million will I give away. I have just enough for car fare now." There are so many beggars in Berlin—mostly old women they are, too. They do not solicit alms. They just stand and wait. I walked a few feet farther and there under a tree stood another shabby old woman. I walked past her quickly, but somehow I had to turn back. I thrust a million-mark note into her unwilling hand—and then too late did I realize my mistake.

She flung the money back at me and her eyes were filled with tears. "No, my fine lady," she said, "perhaps in another month I, too, shall be begging, but not yet, not yet."—Malcka R. Stern, in Survey.

Saw the Connection
"Splendid!" said the youth in the smoking room, as he put down the newspaper. "I see that the price of petrol is coming down."
"Yes," rejoined one of the other members, "but I'd no idea you had a car."

"I haven't; but I've got a petrol lighter."—London Tit-Bits.

Good Furniture Adds Much to the Joy of Living--Little to the Cost

America is fast becoming a nation of better homes. Everywhere there is a growing realization that good Furniture has much to do with happiness and contentment within the home. Furniture, therefore, is now generally recognized as one of the soundest, possible investments—an investment that will pay you richly in "dividends" of comfort, pride and satisfaction. And when you divide the original cost of good Furniture by the many years it will serve you satisfactorily and well, the cost per year is trivial, indeed. Let us show you the many new arrivals, the exceptional values, now featuring our splendid stock of worthwhile Furniture.

Whole Costume of Brown or Rust, Fall Fashion

The whole costume of brown or rust will find a good many buyers this fall, says a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star. Perhaps it will be a three-piece affair or a heavy coat over a frock of different material. The showings of winter coats have a surprising number of bengaline silks in rust, some in brown or black and some in a soft hunter's green. These are really for midwinter and are generally lined with kasha and always trimmed in lovely fur.

With such coats as these the bengaline silk frock underneath will match and the hat likely will be all in the same tone, perhaps with a touch of fur, ostrich or egrettes or maybe with one of the pretty tailored ribbons that are large enough to make quite a point in the hat's make-up.

AMUSEMENTS

Six years ago a newspaper man told Jacqueline Logan she was a silly child to even think about trying to get into the movies. And imagine that man's chagrin when he interviewed her at the Paramount West Coast studios for an eastern magazine, while Miss Logan was appearing in George Melford's "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" as a featured player.

At the time mentioned, the pretty Paramount actress was dipping into journalism at Scotts Bluff, Nebraska. Movies in their ascendancy, then intrigued her.

Then one of the paper's staff returned from a long vacation spent in Los Angeles and Hollywood. He knew conditions. With great trepidation Miss Logan consulted with him about what chance she might have. He was brutal.

"Don't be silly. You haven't a hope" he responded.

Well, of course, neither of them mentioned the episode during the interview on "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" set. But Miss Logan assured Raymond Griffith and David Torrence, fellow featured players in the production, that the bromide about timid hearts never winning fair ladies or success, is still true in this magical, romantic world we live in.

"The Dawn of a Tomorrow" will be the feature at the Met theater tonight.

WHEN the "favorite" really hits his stride, it's all over but the shouting. And in a race for sales it's the same story.

Chesterfield has won its present position because men know by its taste that here is clean-cut superiority of tobaccos and blend.

Queer Find at Pompeii.

A soap-boller's shop was among the things discovered in the excavation at Pompeii several years ago. The city was buried beneath volcanic ashes A. D. 79. It is said that the soap found in the shop had not lost all efficacy, although it had lain under the ashes more than 1,800 years. Soap making was quite a business in a number of the Roman cities at the time that Pompeii was destroyed.

Tangan-Tangan Weed.

The tangen-tangan weed or vine of the Philippines is the source of a valuable lubricating oil. Those interested in the wild growth claim that 1,000,000 gallons of the oil can be produced in one year, while cultivation will greatly increase the output. Besides its value as a lubricator for delicate machinery, tangen-tangan oil is prized by the natives for its medicinal properties.

EDWIN D. RICKETTS

Republican Candidate for Congress

My record in congress for service to one and all alike is generally known by the electorate of this district. If returned to congress by your suffrage, I will render faithful and conscientious service to all.

I am for the actual and substantial reduction of taxes and real and effective economy, and for such legislation as will advance, promote and protect the interests and welfare of the common people.

In my judgment there should be less politics and more efficiency in official service in the congress of the United States.

The people deserve the highest quality of public service from their representatives in congress, and if elected my time and ability will be devoted to the advancement of their welfare and the protection of their interests.

I will appreciate your support and influence.

Lesson for October 19

THE PARABLE OF THE SOWER

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:1-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—The sower soweth the word.—Mark 4:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Garden of the Heart.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Good Soil for Good Seed.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Receive and Use God's Word.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How May I Improve the Soil of My Heart?

The method of teaching by parables was not employed by Jesus until the rulers had set their hearts against Him. When, in the light of His wonderful works, they turned against Him and attributed His works to the Devil (Mark 3:22) He denounced them in scathing terms and began to teach them by parables in fulfillment of Isaiah 6:10. The parabolic method of teaching makes clear the truth to those who love it and conceals it from those who dislike it.

A great multitude gathered to Him at the seaside (v. 1), so that, in order to escape the pressure of the crowd, He was obliged to enter a boat. From the boat as a pulpit He taught many things in parables. In this parable the sower and the seed are the same in all instances, but the results are entirely different. The difference lies in the condition of the soil. The central purpose of the teaching of this parable is to show that the results of preaching the Word depend upon the condition of the human heart.

I. The Wayside (vv. 4; 15).

The wayside means the track beaten down by the hoofs of animals and the feet of men. Because the soil was unbroken and uncultivated the seed could not get beneath the surface, therefore was devoured by the fowls that came along (v. 4). The great truth taught here is that the heart unbroken and hard is not fit soil for the Gospel. Such a heart it penetrates not, but lies loosely upon the surface. It is not recognized as God's means for restoring them unto Himself. While in this condition the evil one finds some way to snatch away the truth. The fowls that devour the seed represent the agents of Satan (v. 15).

II. The Stony Ground (vv. 5, 6; 16, 17).

This means not stones mixed with soil, but stones with a thin layer of soil on them. With such conditions a seed springs up quickly and likewise scorches quickly, as it has not much depth. The great lesson is that hearts superficially impressed receive the Word with joy, but when affliction or persecution arises for the Word's sake, immediately they are offended. They wither away and die.

III. The Thorny Ground (vv. 7; 18, 19).

In this case the ground is good, but has thorns in it. It is mellow enough and has sufficient depth, but has not been cleaned of the thorns. Such really hear the Word, but "the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the Word, and it becometh unfruitful" (v. 19). The thorny ground hearers of this age are those:

1. Who are so immersed in worldliness, business and anxious cares that the good seed cannot mature.
2. Who are rich. Anxious care in business brings riches and the effect of riches is to blunt the spiritual perception of men and women, thereby rendering them unsuspensible to the call of God, to higher things in life.
3. Who are running after the pleasures of life. All these things choke the Word. Many of the enjoyments of the world may be innocent in themselves, but they attract so much attention and consume so much energy and time that one has not time for Bible reading, meditation and prayer.

IV. The Good Ground (vv. 8; 20).

This ground differs from all the rest. It is soft and mellow, deep and moist; therefore, is capable of bringing forth fruit, some an hundred, some sixty and some thirty-fold, indicating different degrees of fruitfulness even of the good ground. In the measure that the heart is kept free from worldliness, riches and pleasure, the good seed matures.

Blaming Nature

You fall into the very common mistake of charging upon nature matters with which she has not the smallest connection, and for which she is in no way responsible. Men talk of nature as an abstract thing, and lose sight of what is natural while they do so.—Dickens.

Opportunity; Responsibility

If God writes "opportunity" on one side of open doors. He writes "responsibility" on the other side.—J. T. Greyc, D. D.

His Kingdom

The Lord uses all the forces of nature in building His Kingdom.—Evangelical Teacher.

The Candle

The candle cannot shine unless it sacrifices.—Echoes.

A Modern Knight

It would be difficult to convince a certain Philadelphia woman that chivalry is obsolete.

"Not long ago," says she, "I met a veritable knight on a dining car. When I went in to luncheon the only seat left for me was one facing the rear of the train. Now, I cannot sit with my back toward the engine without suffering all manner of disagreeable things, so I asked the steward to find me a seat facing the other way. Immediately a middle-aged man rose and offered to let me have his seat. I thanked him, and he took the seat opposite me. He scanned the menu and then he looked at me hesitatingly.

"Madam," said he, 'would it be objectionable to you if I were to order spring onions?'"

Some Truth in This Complaint of Writer

French postal employees are demanding more money, and if they don't get it they threaten to read all the postal cards passing through the mails. If they did such a thing in this country the public could retaliate by writing all postal cards with post-office pens.

If you have ever tried to wield one of these literary implements you will gather at once what we mean.

The man who said the pen is mightier than the sword, wasn't thinking of the kind they harbor in United States post offices.

There is only one thing more useless than a post office pen. That is the post office ink.

Someone wrote to a scientific magazine the other day to find out what becomes of the national crop of deceased lies. They lie buried and mummified in the so-called ink of a great nation's post offices. There they sleep their silent years away until someone comes along and tries to write a letter with them.

The curse of the post office pen is creeping paralysis. The symptoms are plain. When you begin your communication you carefully trace the contour of the letters, but with no visible results. All the afflicted pen can do is scream with pain in a dry, scratchy voice. Then, suddenly, as though striving to make amends for its prior infirmities, its muscles relax, its foul, insatiable throat opens and it breaks loose in a hemorrhage of mud, shoe polish, asphaltum and aerated files.

Another national institution familiar to those of us who look after our correspondence in post office lobbies, is the harveyized or ink-proof blotter. However, we shall not tread further this pathway of disclosure lest it appear that we are endeavoring unfairly to embarrass the United States government on matters concerning which we have, perhaps, already spoken with unbecoming frankness and brutality.—The Thrift Magazine.

Fiery Fountain Attracts

In the scientific section at the British empire exhibition is a fiery fountain. Issuing from a rock is a stream of water, flowing in a graceful curve onto a glass flower, and thence overflowing into a mossy pool, says London Tit-Bits. As the stream of water touches the flower it appears to catch fire, and the flower is illuminated. As you look the color changes from fiery white to fiery red, then from fiery red to vivid green, but the water that flows over the flower is colorless. As it falls onto the bank below it again shows a brilliant iridescence.

The exhibit was prepared by the Manchester College of Technology and a good deal of work and a great number of experiments were made to bring the device to perfection. It is exciting much comment.

Was Infant Shakespeare

A life of "Rimbaud, the Boy and the Poet," has been written by Edgell Rickword. Keats and Shelley were, by our reckoning, youths when their work ended, the New Statesman says. Rimbaud was still, by any reckoning, a boy when his ended; after his eighteenth year he wrote no more verse, after his nineteenth no more prose. But not because he died, like his English brothers; he became a vagabond, then overseer of a quarry in Cyprus, then a merchant in Abyssinia. Here is an enigma that continues to fascinate, because everything indicates that Rimbaud was potentially the greatest force appearing in French literature in modern times, and that Victor Hugo had insight when he said, "C'est Shakespeare enfant."

Being Prejudiced.

Some of the world's greatest men have been prejudiced about most things; and all women make a specialty of prejudices—that is one reason why women are so delightful and so exasperating.—Holbrook Jackson in Today.

Site of Ancient Capital.

The governor general of Korea and a party recently on tour in northern Korea discovered the site of the capital of an old Korean kingdom known as Kukuryo. This kingdom flourished at an early stage in Korean history from 37 B. C. until A. D. 668.

Bracelets have been worn from time immemorial, but few wearers of the golden bands of the present day know that they were once used to distinguish the insane. Before lunatics were confined to asylums they wore an armlet for distinction.

MISS HEISE DEAD

Passed Away at Home of Her Brother -
Funeral Services Saturday.

Mary Heise died at her brother's home, Edson B. Heise in Washington township Wednesday evening at eight o'clock, her death being attributed to old age with complications.

She was of a family of seven children and was born August 21, 1848, being the daughter of Joseph and Maria Anderson Heise. She was born in Washington township not far from where she died.

The deceased was never married and is survived by the following brothers and sisters; Edson B. Heise, of Washington township; Angeline C. Heise Washington township; J. L. Heise Circleville, Ohio; Rose Ann, of Washington township.

Private funeral services will be held at the residence of the deceased Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock (sun time) and interment will be in Forest cemetery.

FOOTBALL NOTES.

The Eagle team will play their first away from home game on Sunday, October 26, the Sunday following the Pumpkin Show when they journey to Wellston. Arrangements are being made to carry along a crowd of rooters. Watch for announcements.

Two of the hard games on the Eagle schedule are with the neighboring village of Clarksburg where they have a team that is playing a whirlwind game. Circleville visits Clarksburg on November 9 and entertains here on November 23.

Interest by our local football fans would do much to hold the Eagle team at home during November. If the team can make more money on the road than in Circleville, out-of-town games will be taken.

CLUB MEETING.

Sick Poultry Can Be Cured Any Season of the Year.

Circleville, O., R. F. D. 6,
September 29, 1924.

Mrs. Edward H. Wardell, winner of Grand Sweep Stakes for best dozen eggs in show in Ohio State university, held February, 1924, says:

Mr. F. L. Fickardt, Dear Sir:—

I am only too glad to recommend Fickardt's Roup and Cholera Drops to any one interested in poultry, as the best preventative for contagious diseases I know of, on the market today. About three years ago cholera broke out in my flock of young chickens, which were then about six weeks old, and weighing about 1½ pounds. There were 175 birds in this flock. As soon as I discovered they were sick I began treating them according to instructions of a specialist. I only lost eleven out of 175, and checked the disease in about three days. At that time Fickardt's Roup and Cholera Drops was recommended to me as a wonderful medicine to be used as a preventive of contagious diseases. At that time I began using the Drops and have not had an epidemic since, altho I lose one or two now and then from common causes such as apoplexy, egg-bound, etc. I begin giving it to the chicks when they are quite young and from that time on they are never without it. At the present time I am shipping two cases of eggs a week and have been for the last six months, from my flock of 180 hens and I attribute this high egg production to the healthy condition of my flock. I always grade and candle my eggs and I have attained such a degree of perfection that I have less than three per cent of my eggs that do not run over the specified weight of 24 ounces to the dozen.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Edward H. Wardell.

COURSES OFFERED IN PUBLIC HEALTH

Correspondence School Conducted by Institutions.

Washington.—Correspondence and reading courses in public health have been conducted by seven state departments of health and by six universities in this country in the last two years, according to the United States public health service, which for more than a year has been collecting data on the subject from the executive officers of state departments of health and from the universities with which Class A medical schools are affiliated.

Of the courses given by departments of health, five are for sanitarians—those conducted in Kansas, Illinois, Ohio, New Mexico and Pennsylvania. In addition, the Virginia state health department offers a correspondence course for teachers; in both Virginia and Minnesota a course is given in the hygiene of maternity and infancy for mothers, and a second course is offered in Pennsylvania, one for persons connected with industries, schools and with civic and religious organizations.

"In no case is tuition charged for the courses conducted by state departments of health," says a summary of the survey. "Mimeographed or printed lessons are distributed in several instances, and in two cases, textbooks are used. Those taking the course are required to answer questions by mail from time to time, in four or five instances in connection with each lesson. The number enrolled varies a great deal, so also does the length of course.

Some Courses for Laymen.

"The correspondence courses offered by universities are in five instances conducted by the extension division of the university and in one case by the department of hygiene. One university conducts only one course, two conduct two courses, two, four courses, and one conducts seven courses. Most courses appeared to be offered primarily for those who are now or intend to be engaged in public health work, although a few courses apparently are for laymen.

"In all cases tuition is charged, textbooks are used and examinations given. Academic credit is granted for all courses, except in one university, where credit is given when the student is enrolled in the school of medicine. The length of courses varies from 20 to 40 lessons. While the courses offered by universities may have a more dignified status than those offered by state departments of health, the number of students enrolled is not large.

"The Ohio state department of health has prepared a course, with the assistance of the International Health board, for persons employed in public health work on a full-time or part-time basis, not including, however, nurses. The work requires one year, but no definite time is set for completing it. The Kansas state board of health, which also received assistance from the International Health board, established in January, 1923, a correspondence course for sanitarians (mostly part-time county health officers). Of the 105 who enrolled the entire number completed the course. The course was repeated in 1924.

"The bureau of public health of the department of public welfare of New Mexico organized for city and county health officers a correspondence course in 1920, consisting of 40 lessons given at weekly intervals. The course was taken by 50 persons. The work has not been conducted in a systematic way since 1920. The Virginia state board of health operates two correspondence courses, one for teachers and one for mothers.

Free Courses for Mothers.

"The Minnesota state board of health, through its division of child hygiene, conducts a correspondence course in the hygiene of maternity and infancy.

"The Pennsylvania department of health, through its division of public health education, has conducted two courses which it designated as correspondence courses.

"The University of Chicago maintains a large home study department. Seven courses are given in the department of hygiene and bacteriology.

"The University of Wisconsin at present offers through its extension division approximately four courses—two for mothers and women generally, one for nurses and one for health officers. The University of Arkansas announces through its general extension divisions, courses in the following subjects: School hygiene, sewerage, water works, and illuminating engineering. The University of Kansas announces through its correspondence study bureau a non-credit course in home health and home nursing, which is taken by many women over the state. The University of Tennessee, through its department of hygiene, offered in January, 1923, a correspondence course in personal and community hygiene.

Valuable Jewels Sifted From Ashes of Ruins

York Harbor, Me.—Part of the $75,000 worth of jewelry in the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Smith of Rochester, N. Y., which was destroyed by fire, has been recovered from the ruins by sifting. Among the articles recovered are a pearl necklace, valued at $40,000, and a diamond brooch.

Another brooch, a diamond bar pin and three emeralds still are missing. Since the fire the ruins about the Smith cottage have been roped off and guards maintained.
